Permission has been secured to arrange one or two of the school rooms on the first floor for rest rooms, for the ladies and children. Every convenience possible will be provided, so that family parties may come to town for the day and evening programs.

Season tickets for this event, which will be the biggest thing in the entertainment line offered in Stanford in years, are going fast. The ladies' committees are distributing season tickets now. This contest is sure to be interesting. There are three contestants from Lancaster with Mrs. Todd, as teacher and three from Stanford with Miss Burch instructing. These ladies and their work are too well known and appreciated to need further comment. Make them feel your appreciation of them by your presence at this contest on the evening of June 8th. Special music will be a feature. This will be furnished by the young people. The male quartet will delight all.

MADE A FINE RECORD.

The friends of Miss Kate Lynn Wood were delighted to hear of the record she has recently made while in school at Richmond. In the examinations last week she received next to the highest average in a class of forty pupils. This permits her to have a first-class certificate. The highest average was claimed by a man of forty-five and an experienced teacher. This is the usual record of all Miss Woods' work and she returns in a couple of weeks for the summer, having taken a six weeks course.

WHOOPIING COUGH

"When my daughter had whooping cough she coughed so hard at one time that she had hemorrhage of the lungs. I was terribly alarmed about her condition. Seeing Chamberlain's Cough Remedy so highly recommended, I got her a bottle and it relieved the cough at once. Before she had finished two bottles of this remedy she was entirely well," writes Mrs. S. F. Grimes, Crooksville, Ohio. Obtainable everywhere.

THE SMITH DIVORCE CASE.

The fact that a wife is living in a county other than the residence of her husband by agreement with him and for some special reason, not with the intention of severing their marital relations, does not establish the wife's place of residence in the county in which she happens to be dwelling for the time, said the court of Appeals last week, refusing a writ of prohibition to Mrs. Sarah Smith, restraining Judge W. T. Davis, of the Harlan circuit court, from trying the divorce proceedings instituted by her husband, W. H. H. Smith. Mrs. Smith has been living for two years in Boyle county, where their children are being educated. She demurred to the jurisdiction of the Harlan circuit court, alleging that her residence was in Boyle county, but the court overruled her demurrer and then she asked for a writ of prohibition. Judge Carroll wrote the opinion denying the writ.

STREET OIL ORDERED.

The dust nuisance will soon be abated in Stanford. Ten thousand gallons of street oil have been ordered by the Special Committee, which has the matter in charge. The oil car is expected here the latter part of the week, and with good weather, will be spread at once. This will be glad news to the host of people who have been suffering from dust blown all over everything. The Special Committee has been making a round of the city endeavoring to estimate just the amount that will be needed for the various thoroughfares. The local soliciting committee has raised about $475 which, with the Council's $300 appropriation, will amply finance the proposition.

FREE LETTUCE FOR ASKING.

There isn't a bigger hearted fellow anywhere than Col. Clark Jordan, proprietor of the St. Asaph Hotel. His many acts of charity and benevolence more often go unnoticed and unheralded, than otherwise. But he is advertising one act of charity, in order to reach those who will be affected. In another part of the I. J., he suggests that all who may need a little lettuce, come and help themselves free of all cost from a large bed which he has at the hotel garden. Col. Jordan says he will be only too glad to give away the lettuce to all who may call as long as it lasts.

DANVILLE ENGAGEMENT.

A special from Danville says: Mr. and Mrs. Achilles Ballinger Brown today announced the engagement of their daughter, Mary, to Mr. Peter Gentry Caldwell. The wedding will take place in midsummer. The young couple are very popular in Kentucky society and are very popular. Mr. Gentry is a son of Jerry C. Caldwell and a grandson of Peter Gentry, two of the wealthiest land owners in Boyle county, and the nephew of the late Smith Gentry, of Lexington.

The Eleventh district convention of Christian churches met Friday at Barbourville for a two-days' session with a large attendance from over the State. The first day included the Christian Women's Board of Missions' session, the morning program being featured by addresses by the State secretary, Mrs. Louise Campbell; State president, Mrs. John S. Gay, and Mrs. Mary Walden, of Danville.

In Harrison county, W. S. Hutcherson sold to T. J. Burgess, two mule colts for $157.50.

REID DODGES OFFICERS.

Charley Reid, convicted in circuit court last week of running a nuisance at Milledgeville, and also selling whisky illegally, and fined $3,000 in the first case and $100 in the latter, is still at large. Deputy Sheriff John Moser, who went after Reid Friday, was unable to locate him, and was told that he had left for Ohio. On Monday, however, John B. Dinwiddie, the well known auctioneer of Moreland, was in Stanford, and said that he had seen Reid Sunday, and others from that section report that he is there and in hiding. Deputy Sheriff Moser and Deputy Sheriff W. S. Embry were sent after him again, the latter going to Junction and Shelby Cities, but again they were unable to obtain trace of him.

The D. A. R.'s were delightfully entertained at their May meeting on Monday morning by Miss Nancy Yeager in her usually pleasing manner. The business meeting was opened with prayer by the Chaplain, Mrs. McClary, and a very interesting program was heard. Mrs. T. W. Pennington gave an instructive talk on Kings Mountain Day. Soon after the guests arrived each was given a card on which was written "Decoration Day," while "Old Glory" ornamented one corner. All were set to work making the greatest number of words from "Decoration Day." Miss Esther Burch being the lucky one, she forming one hundred and nine words, for which she was presented with a large stick of "red, white and blue" candy. A lovely luncheon was served, consisting of a salad course, with cream and cake following. The color scheme was very uniquely carried out, the red, white and blue ribbons being used with the tiny flags. With the exception of four members, all were present, and the meeting closed until July.

TO DECORATE GRAVES TODAY.

Unless there should be a heavy downpour, the announced program for Decoration Day will be carried out in full at Buffalo Springs cemetery this afternoon under the auspices of the D. A. R., and the Woman's Club. As this is a legal holiday the banks and postoffice are closed. The program for this afternoon is as follows, beginning at 3:30 o'clock: Invocation—Rev. P. L. Bruce. Addresses—Rev. M. D. Early and D. M. Walker.

"Our Duty to the Dead"—Judge C. A. Hardin. Benediction—Rev. W. D. Welburn. The following songs will be sung during the program: "Shall We Gather at the River," "America," and a quartet will render, "Only Remembered by What We Have Done."

MCTORED THRU A LONG WAY.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Bastin, grandchildren, John Bastin Mitchell and Lee Givens Mitchell, and nephew, Hendley Napier, were here Saturday afternoon en route to Highland, to spend a few days with Mr. Bastin's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James D. Bastin. They drove from their home at Central City in a day and a half, making 143 miles the first day over bad roads in their Dodge car. Mr. Bastin owns valuable coal interests in Muhlenburg county and elsewhere and is reported to have made lots of money in the last few years.

PISTOL TOTING LAW.

Reversing the Whitley Circuit Court in the case of Melt Morgan against the Commonwealth, the Appellate Court held last week that a person could be convicted of the offense of carrying concealed and deadly weapons and sentenced to the penitentiary if the offense was committed before his first conviction on that charge. Under the statute persons convicted the first time are discharged. On the second conviction they are sentenced to the penitentiary.

"I suffered with stomach trouble for years and tried everything I heard of, but the only relief I got was temporary until last spring I saw Chamberlain's Tablets advertised and procured a bottle of them at our drug store. I got immediate relief from that dreadful heaviness after eating and from pain in the stomach," writes Mrs. Linda Harrod Fort Wayne, Ind. Obtainable everywhere.

CASHIER OF MCKINNEY BANK.

Cleo Thomas

The McKinney Deposit Bank made a "ten-strike" when it secured the services of Cleo Thomas as its cashier. He is a wide-awake young business man, has the confidence of a large circle of friends and acquaintances and is well equipped by nature and otherwise to fill the position he is holding. Mr. Thomas is a Casey county product, having first seen the light of day in the Dunnville-Phil section, but has been living in Lincoln for a number of years, having been book-keeper and general manager of a large spoke concern at McKinney. That the McKinney Deposit Bank is growing and prospering under his management is no surprise to his legion of friends, who knew what the result would be when the news was given out that he had been elected cashier.

KENTUCKIAN HAS MADE GOOD IN WEST

The Oroville, Cal., Mercury had the following to say about Judge H. D. Gregory, son-in-law of Judge J. P. Bailey, of this city. The impression which Superior Court Judge H. D. Gregory made upon the people of Oakland and San Francisco on his trip following the ending of the Madison Slaughter trial is shown by press comment. Judge Gregory was a guest at the Newspaper Men's Club and met many members of the editorial staffs of the various papers. The Knave, a department of the Oakland Tribune, has the following to say regarding Judge Gregory: "Judge Gregory of Oroville was in town immediately after he pronounced sentence upon the Rev. Madison Slaughter. The judge is a quiet and modest sort of man, who does not advertise himself in any way, nor give forth a sign that he has been through a notable judicial experience."

"His bearing is in keeping with the impression that might have been gained of him from the accounts of the famous case over which he presided. He is a dignified but not capricious magistrate, who was sure of himself and generally cognizant of what is seemly in legal proceedings. "He doesn't talk much about the case, further than to intimate that Slaughter did not get any more than was coming to him. The judge had a hard session and his visit to San Francisco is for a change of scene and air, which constitute the important elements of a rest—to forget as far as it is possible the sordid and salacious particulars of the celebrated case."

FOR CLOVER BLOAT.

At the request of The Grant County News County Agent Fullerton of Grant county has written the following instructions for prevention and cure of the bloat: The Dutch or White clover, called also old fashioned clover, is the chief miscreant. Alsike, red clover and some other clover are also bad but White and Yellow Bloom Sweet clover are not as dangerous. The chief danger is when the clover is cold. This causes a sort of indigestion and formation of gas causing death through suffocation or pressure of the heart. Cattle and sheep owners should be careful when first turning their stock into a field where there is clover, as they may eat too greedily at first. If the animal bloats the first remedy is to tie a stick in the mouth as a sort of bit and walk it gently up and down, trying in every way to get the animal to belch. Rub the bloat side hard where it is swollen in front of the hips. If this is not effective administer a drachm of one-half of formalin in a quart of water, or two ounces of turpentine in a quart of linseed oil. If these measures fail, or if the animal is down, and cannot get up, it will probably be best to stick it just in front of the hip to let out the gas.

ROOSEVELT IN KENTUCKY.

Impartial Poll Among Rads Shows Interesting Situation.

(From Courier-Journal)
The following conclusions are based on a straw vote of Kentucky Republicans carefully conducted by the Courier-Journal thru its corps of correspondents in the State:

Sixty-three per cent of the Republicans of Kentucky are opposed to the nomination of Colonel Roosevelt for President, but only 18 per cent of them will not vote for the man who disrupted their party in 1912 in the event he is nominated. Eight per cent of the Republicans of the State will vote for Wilson, should Roosevelt receive the Republican nomination and President Wilson be nominated at the hands of the Democrats. Thirty-seven per cent of Kentucky Republicans favor the nomination of Colonel Roosevelt.

After deciding to test the sentiments of Kentucky Republicans on the Roosevelt proposition the Courier-Journal communicated with each of its county-seat correspondents, sending each twenty ballots and instructing him to distribute them among the town and county Republicans, taking in all factions and giving to no particular group the advantage of doing all the voting.

Returns were made by all but eight of the 120 correspondents, the missing counties, being Bell, Bullitt, Harrison, Knott, Livingston, Martin, Spencer and Trigg. As a result 2,240 Republicans were heard from, and of this number 825, or 37 per cent expressed a preference for Col. Roosevelt; 1,415, or 63 per cent, indicated their opposition to the Colonel; 1,828, or 82 per cent, said they would not vote for him under any circumstances; 176, or 8 per cent, indicated that they would vote for President Wilson should Roosevelt receive the Republican nomination.

Various reasons were given by those opposing the nomination of Roosevelt, the chief one being that no recognition should be given a man who did his best to wreck the party in 1912. Another reason was that the nomination of Roosevelt by the Republicans, might be taken by hot-blooded youth of the country as an indication that a majority of Americans are eager for war with Germany.

On one of the many ballots received from out in the state was written: "Afraid of Big Stick." Yet this Republican indicated that in the event Roosevelt is nominated by the Republicans he would vote for him. Returns from 26 of the 112 counties heard from showed a majority each for Roosevelt. These are Boyd, Boyle, Breathitt, Galloway, Fayette, Fulton, Garrard, Henderson, Hickman, Hopkins, Jackson, Laurel, Leslie, Letcher, Logan, McCracken, Mercer, Monroe, Nelson, Oldham, Pendleton, Powell, Rockcastle, Scott and Woodford. In Hickman county all but one of the twenty Republicans interviewed expressed a preference for the Colonel. In nine counties the vote for and against Roosevelt was equally divided.

The Mercer county correspondent writes that "the most surprising feature of the situation" in his county "is that a number of men who were active supporters of Taft four years ago are now enthusiastic Roosevelt supporters. Two prominent Republicans, while not favoring Roosevelt, expressed the opinion that he would be nominated."

Roosevelt is not nearly as strong in Wayne county as four years ago, according to the Courier-Journal correspondent at Monticello. "This is due," he writes, "to two reasons—resentment of his bolting the Chicago convention and a feeling that we need a safer man under present conditions. The Republicans here are sticklers for party regularity and hesitate to bolt under any ordinary condition, but I believe from my conversations with them, that more will vote for Wilson over Roosevelt than indicated in my straw ballot returns."

General News Notes

W. O. Broadus, 65, who went from Richmond to Shawnee, Okla., where he was principal of a school, died last week after a paralytic stroke.

Fire, originating from a match used in lighting a cigarette and carelessly thrown to the floor of the James Nichols garage, at Frankfort last week, ignited a gasoline tank and partially destroyed nine automobiles and the garage. The loss is estimated at $10,000.

The Flemingsburg Times-Democrat says: "Harry Hawley, of near Pinhook, had two sows to give birth to 35 pigs, 18 from one and 17 from the other, and 34 of them are living, 17 to each.

MAY RUN FOR SENATOR.

Hon. L. Merriwether Smith, who has represented Mercer county in the lower house of the legislature most ably for the past two sessions, was in Stanford Monday on legal business. Mr. Smith is the author of the pure seed law which passed the last session, and will prove a big boon to the farmers of the state. A number of his friends are urging him to make the race for the State Senate next year as it is Mercer county's time to furnish the senator to the district composed of Mercer, Anderson and Franklin counties. Mr. Smith says that he has not yet made up his mind what he will do about the matter but intimated that he would probably run.

AUTOES GO LIKE HOT CAKES

Several more auto sales were made in Stanford since last report and machines are getting as common as leaves in Vallambrosia. John A. Allen bought a handsome seven-passenger Studebaker car last week from the Bailey Garage Company. Welch Rochester purchased a nifty Ford cabriolet from H. C. Anderson, local agent for this popular car. W. H. Perkins, of Rowland, has purchased a new Ford touring car.

Hustonville

James M. Hall and Harry Stinson, of New Castle, Ind., are here for a week, visiting Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Tupman. They leave here for their home next Sunday, where they both have excellent positions with the Maxwell Motor Co.

Geo. J. Cunningham, of Danville, was here Saturday morning for a while among friends. He was on a visit to Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Spragens at Ellisburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Spragens motored to Stanford last Saturday for their daughter, Miss Florence, who had been on a visit to Mr. and Mrs. W. L. McCarty.

Messrs. Wheat, Combest and Cundiff, of Liberty, were here a short while en route home from Louisville.

The pet dog of Col. E. C. Hopper was found to be in a state of hydrophobia last Saturday morning and the police department was at once notified and the dog had to be killed. Quite a little excitement was created but lasted for only a little while. All dogs have been ordered muzzled, so far we have seen only one dog with a muzzle on.

Miss Bessie Girdler, daughter of Robert Girdler, who resides near town, eloped last Saturday and was married to Mr. Walter Baker, formerly of Somerset, but now of Michigan. They went on their way rejoicing to their new home in the North.

A most glorious rain fell here Sunday night and Monday morning—something that was greatly needed. Lots of tobacco and all kinds of plants were set after the shower.

Mrs. J. O. Carpenter and son, of Junction City, have been the guests of relatives and friends here this week.

Judge Lincoln Wells, of Yosemite, has been among us here this week.

Clarence Dunn went to Louisville last week, where he has a nice job tendered him in a machine shop.

John J. Brown, our Fork mail man, tells us his son is in a very critical condition, and there are little hopes for his recovery.

Hugh Thompson, formerly of Powers Store, but now of Denver, Col., arrived here Monday after a four-years' sojourn out there on a cattle ranch of his own. He has a head or hair that he has grown that is about a foot long, which has changed his looks a great deal, but his mug still looks like Hugh. He is down in Casey now for a short visit to relatives.

Julian Riffe helped the looks of things considerably Wednesday, by scraping off the weeds and dirt. Now why can't more of our citizens do likewise?

Mr. Geo. Robinson and wife, of Lancaster, were here Wednesday to attend the C. W. B. M. convention, which was largely attended from everywhere.

HEAVY FINES IN CIRCUIT COURT

Evil doers are catching it heavy at the present term of Circuit Court. Following the heavy fining of bootleggers and blind tiger operators early last week, the jury which tried R. E. Thompson on a charge of running a nuisance with his soft drink stand at Crab Orchard, brought in a verdict of guilty and fixed his fine at $200 and costs.

Will Love, a local negro, has been tried twice at the term of court on a charge of selling a drink of whiskey to a white man named Sam Taylor. The first jury was unable to agree upon a verdict but the second jury which tried Love brought in a verdict of guilty Monday and fixed his punishment at a fine of $60 and 10 days in jail. Joe Hayden, another local negro, was given a similar fine, upon a charge of selling whisky to Hiatt Burge.

Col. Joe B. Willis and Col. John Robinson, proprietors of the famous Crab Orchard Springs, were fined $25 and costs each on charges of permitting a nuisance, the charge being that they allowed a sewer from the Springs hotel property to empty into an open ditch. Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Jones preferred the charge against them.

The grand jury has so far returned 12 indictments into court, mostly for minor offenses. It is understood that indictments were returned against four of the Hopkins boys who took their brother away from Marshall Hamilton at Crab Orchard a few Saturdays ago, the charge being assisting a prisoner to escape from an officer. Several indictments were returned in liquor cases, also.

Circuit court went into trial Tuesday morning of the Garrard Bank & Trust Company as administrator of the late Thomas J. Oaks against H. C. Anderson, growing out of the death of Mr. Oaks some time ago when he was accidentally struck by an auto driven by a son of Mr. Anderson.

STILL BOOMING FLORENCE

It was given out as reliable Republican "dope" that George D. Florence, of Stanford, will be the party nominee for Congressman in the 8th district this year, and that Col. Tom Neat, of Columbia, who thinks he is running, might just as well "take his law out." The Eighth district is where Lud Petty, the Republican State campaign chairman hails from and it is conceded that he will have the say-so who shall be put up there. Mr. Florence is "in good" with the Hitchcock element that is now running things Republican in Kentucky and that is about all he needs to get the nomination in the Eighth district.—Louisville Times.

K. P. MEMBERSHIP CONTEST.

In a membership contest among the State lodges of the Knights of Pythias, $25 in gold has been awarded to Carnaliam Lodge No. 156, of Louisville, as first prize for the largest gain of new members secured by a lodge, 38 being secured, and a similar prize was awarded H. B. Spurlock, of Mountain Lodge No. 189, Blanche, for the largest individual gain in membership. Announcement of the awarding of the prizes was made by John W. Carter, Grand Keeper of Records and Seal of the order in Kentucky. Mr. Carter said that about one hundred members secured one or more new members and were awarded a beautiful enameled Knights of Pythias pin, given by the lodge.

HENRY HOPKINS CONVICTED.

The jury in the case of the Commonwealth against the Hopkins brothers, charged with killing Town Marshal Collins, of Berea, returned a verdict for acquittal at Richmond late last week, for Will and a sentence of two years in the penitentiary for Henry Hopkins. Judge Shackelford held a nice session of court to allow the attorneys finish their arguments and a verdict was reached some time after midnight.

John Sanford, of Amsterdam, N. Y., who won the Kentucky Derby with George Smith, has bought from R. M. Clark, of Fayette county, three fine saddle horses. He paid $700 for two of them and $200 for the other, an unbroken gelding.

Best Thing for a Bilious Attack

On account of my confinement in the printing office I have for years been a chronic sufferer from indigestion and liver trouble. A few weeks ago I had an attack that was so severe that I was not able to go to the case for two days. Failing to get any relief from any other treatment, I took three of Chamberlain's Tablets and the next day I felt like a new man," writes H. C. Bailey, Editor Carolina News, Chapin, S. C. FOURTEENTH EPISODE

The Unmasking.

A strange mood of happiness, as unreasoning as it was inexplicable, seemed to have taken possession of Margery Golden. A less timorous light shone from the depths of her pool-brown eyes. At all times of the day, too, she could be heard singing about the house.

This wayward blitheness of spirit was something more than a puzzle to her heavy-browed father, who found little in the situation immediately confronting him to cause him any undue lightness of heart. For that situation had unexpectedly taken on the form of a defeat.

After all Jules Legar's campaign for the possession of that pregnant scrap of parchment which carried the key to the secret of the lost treasure of Windward Island, the long-fought-for document had suddenly disappeared from the Golden vault. And all evidence pointed to the fact that it was the Laughing Mask who had stolen the chart and cipher code from the safe.

Golden was in the midst of his second conference with the russet-faced Captain Brackett of the headquarters staff, when a telephone call came for that official. The talk over the wire was one-sided. Then with great deliberation the official hung up the receiver and swung about to Enoch Golden.

"Well, we've got your Laughing Mask for you."

"You've got him?" repeated Golden. "Our man Walcott located him by trailing his chauffeur. And before nightfall we can have him rounded up."

"Where was he found?"

"Just where you'd least expect a man of that character to be found. He's hiding in a cave in the Hudson Palisades, not ten miles from where we're sitting at the moment, just above Coleman's village. And the fact he's ducked to a Malina like that bears out what we've always claimed, that he's as big a crook as this Iron Claw himself. For honest men don't crawl into river caves!"

Golden was about to reply in the affirmative to this self-obvious statement when he was interrupted by the entrance of his daughter.

"But supposing our fugitive," said the serene-eyed girl as she smiled down on the somewhat startled police captain, "had enemies who seemed at the moment stronger than he was and at the same time found himself in possession of something which it wouldn't seem natural for him to go where he'd be least likely to be found?"

"When an honest man has something it seems dangerous to hold, he goes to the police for protection. When a crook has made a haul, and is shaky about losing his swag, he beats it to his Malina, to his fence, the same as your friend the Laughing Mask has done! And the sooner we get the wheels moving and root that masked ground-hog out of his dugout the better!"

"I'm ready," announced Enoch Golden.

With a gasp of sudden resolution Margery rang the bell, called for her roadster, and struggled into her hat and coat, as she ran down the sandstone steps to the street.

She sped off through the city at a rate that was an open and obvious violation of all the speed laws. She laughed rebelliously as, once free of the congested ferry traffic, she swung lightly past the car in which she beheld her own astounded father decorously seated, giving him her dust as she mounted to the crest of the Jersey hills and struck the road leading northward along the wide-bosomed river.

Then as she swung past still another hurrying car the smile suddenly died from her face. For she felt sure that one of the faces in that car ward along the topmost ridge of the cliff, heading for the timber not more than a hundred yards away.

But by this time two of the officers, recovering their wind and burning with the indignities to which they had been subjected, had caught sight

But Legar fought, backed close against the rock, with the ferocity of a wildcat, holding off every attack and with his failing iron claw sweeping back every assailant. Then, swinging about, he leaped up the cliff-face, springing from rock to rock with the agility of a mountain goat.

At the top of the cliff, when Enoch Golden himself, side by side with the police captain, attempted to bar that flight, the fugitive bowed over those two round figures and bolted.

of the fugitive and started in pursuit. They ran well, and they ran determinedly. Legar, realizing that they were gaining on him, and further realizing that he could not keep up his gait for long, veered suddenly towards the river, where a road-builder's tool shed stood at the extreme end of a rock-cut along the cliff-top. Through the doorway of this shed he darted, with his two pursuers, now joined by a third officer, not a hundred yards behind him.

He had hoped, in diving into that empty building, to throw his pursuers off his track, if only for a few moments. But in this he was disappointed. Just as he was disappointed in finding that the shack he had entered possessed no second exit or entrance. And as he stared quickly about he realized that he had unwittingly entered a trap.

Running to the far end of the shack, he sent his wooden arm crashing through the window, leaped to the sill, and stared out. Below him lay the Hudson. Crouching low, he leaped from the sill where he stood, leaped into space and then dropped like a plummet to the river below.

"We've lost him!" gasped the foremost of the pursuers, crossing to the shack and staring breathless through the shattered window sash.

"He's done for!" cried the second man. "No guy can take that drop and—By God, we're wrong! He's up! He's striking out for shore!"

"Then get down by the Coleman road, you men, and head that hell-diver off before he's half way across Jersey!"

The End of the Trail.

"You should not have come here," she said without turning to the man in the yellow mask who stood smiling so close behind her.

"I had to come!" he said in suddenly sobered tones.

"Why?" asked the troubled girl.

"Because I couldn't stay longer without seeing you," was the other's answer.

The girl at the window turned slowly about and faced him.

"But think of the risk! It's not half an hour since I heard father telephoning for that police captain. And that captain has said over and over again that he will never rest until he's effected your capture. And we both know that Legar is still at large."

"I am willing to take chances now that I'd never have taken before. For I know that you love me now, and I'm never happy when I'm away from you!"

"But we can't be together in this house—even if it is my home. It will always be a house of danger."

"Then why should either of us stay in this house?" he demanded. "Why can't we slip away from these walls of intrigue and go where we can find our own happiness?"

Margery Golden shook her head slowly from side to side.

"We would only be going with a cloud over us. And with that cloud there could never be happiness."

"Then our first duty is to get rid of the cloud. It's true I took this chart from your father's vault, but you know as well as I do I took it only to prevent its theft by Legar. And if that is the blot that stands between us, I can wipe out that blot by restoring the chart to where it belongs." He stooped and turned her face to the light. "And if that is done, will you promise to come with me?"

"Dearest," she murmured as she closed her eyes to his caress, "your people shall be my people and your way my own. And I will go wherever you ask me to go!"

It was ten minutes later that the two of them, hand in hand, stole quietly down through the shadowy house to the library. The girl was heavily veiled and dressed for the street. And with her she carried a handbag into which she had feverishly thrown what things she most needed for the flight.

"This is the last time," she said as she crossed to the doors on the far side of the room and locked them, "that you or I will have to steal like a thief through this house!"

The Laughing Mask, who was working at the vault door, looked up as she spoke.

"But it's not often thieves break into a safe to put things back," he said as he swung the heavy steel door open. She stood watching that open door as he stepped into the darkness of the vault. He seemed to be having trouble with the lock of one of the inner drawers.

Then a tingle of alarm spread quickly through her body, for the call-bell of the telephone on the rosewood desk suddenly rang out through the room. The shrill of that bell, brought the Laughing Mask from the depths of the vault.

"Don't answer it!" warned the girl.

"But Wilson or one of the servants will surely come," explained the Laughing Mask as he moved towards the door that still remained unlocked.

"But the chart—is it back?"

"It is back where it belongs," was the answer.

"Then I'll shut the vault door. And the sooner we get out to your car the better!"

He stood watching her as she crossed to the heavy safe door and swung it shut. He saw her gloved hand go up to the nicked handle, to throw on the lock. Then she did a startling and unexpected thing. With an oddly birdlike movement of the head she stopped and stared intently at his figure, clearly outlined against the dark folds of the portiere behind him. Then, instead of locking the vault door, she took four quick steps to the heavily carved teakwood table on her right. From this she caught up a Roman lamp of heavy bronze, hurling it with all her force at the swaying portiere behind him at the same moment that she uttered her sudden scream of warning.

For from the folds of that portiere she had caught sight of an iron claw at the end of a preternaturally long arm. And as this iron claw was lifted high in the air she caught the glint of a naked steel knife-blade, pointed and slender, held in some inexplicable manner, in the clutch of that circle of iron.

"Legar," was all she had time to cry out as the bronze lamp went swinging against that upraised tentacle of wood and iron. But the warning was sufficient.

The Laughing Mask, leaping to one side, escaped before the knife could be recovered. Then he ran towards the girl in the center of the room, standing between her and the door, as though to shield her body with his own, for by this time Legar was in the room itself. And as he advanced on her he tossed the knife away and drew a revolver from his pocket.

But the man in the mask, moving even more quickly than his enemy, swung the girl about and half carried and half dragged her back to the vault, where with one tug of his free hand he sprung the heavy steel door half open. Legar fired, as he did so, but the shot ricocheted harmlessly against the safe-front of japed steel.

"Father keeps a navy revolver in the coin drawer of the vault here," called out the girl as the man in the mask pushed her deeper into the shadow of the protecting door.

At the same moment that the Laughing Mask swung about and tugged open the coin drawer, Wilson and a round-eyed footman, having heard the sound of the shot, came running to the library door. But before that door could be opened, Legar, realizing that his time was short, had taken matters in his own hand. Charging boldly against the half-closed vault door, he swung it shut before the meaning of his maneuver could be understood. Then he threw on the lock, spun the dial, and wheeled about to cover the two white-faced and gaping-mouthed servants with his revolver.

"Sit one foot, either of you, and it'll be your last move on this earth!" he cried as he edged guardedly towards the door, still covering them as he went.

He would have reached the door and passed out through it without interruption, had not the entrance door of the house been thrown open and the noise of many feet sounded through the wide hallway. And the next moment the indignant voice of Enoch Golden could be heard calling for his vanished servants.

Legar, with a movement of his weapon, motioned Wilson and the shaking-kneed footman out through the door. Then, staring frantically about the room, he ran to a Persian panel screen of faded tapestry and crouched behind it, with his revolver still in his hand.

The next moment the room was filled with a clatter of hurrying feet and a babel of voices. Wilson, almost inarticulate with excitement, attempted for the third time to explain the situation to Enoch Golden and the officials from the central office who followed at his heels.

"My daughter, you say, shut up in that vault?"

"Yes, sir, shut up with the man in the yellow mask!"

Golden was breathing hard as he stooped over the lock-dial and worked with shaking fingers on the combination.

"Stand ready, Captain Brackett, for you know what this Laughing Mask is!" the old capitalist warned the officer beside him.

Then Golden, throwing back the lock-bars, swung open the vault door. But instead of encountering a criminal with a drawn gun, they found only a somewhat drooping-shouldered young man, in a yellow mask, supporting the body of a half-fainting girl.

"Get some water, somebody, quick!" said the preoccupied young man in the mask, as he stepped slowly and somewhat shakily out to the light. But no one moved to obey that command.

"So we've got you at last!"

It was Enoch Golden who spoke, confronting the abstracted youth in the mask as the latter lifted away the girl's veil and stared half-smilingly down into her white face at the same time that she slowly opened her eyes. Then he looked up at the girl's father.

"Yes, you've got me at last," he quietly announced.

"Then we'll just see who it is we've got!" declared the russet-faced officer as he stepped closer to the youth in the yellow domino. With a quick movement of his hand he jerked the mask from its wearer's face.

Golden was not the only person in that circle who stood for a silent moment or two staring at the face so suddenly disclosed to them.

Well Known Remedy
Relieves Chronic CaseIMPORTANT TO DISPOSE OF WASTE FROM THE STOMACH WITH REGULARITY.

People frequently attribute to failure of the digestive organs conditions that are primarily due to inactive bowels, and apply remedies that from their very nature are more apt to aggravate than to relieve this disorder.

When the bowels act regularly the stomach is in better shape to perform its allotted tasks and can usually be depended upon. To keep the bowels in condition there is no more effective remedy than the combination of simple laxative herbs known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin which is sold in drug stores for fifty cents a bottle.

Dr. Caldwell has prescribed this remedy in his practice for over a quarter of a century and it is today the standard household remedy in thousands of homes. Mr. Thos De Loach, with the Department of the Interior, Office of Indian Affairs, at Washington, wrote Dr. Caldwell recently that "Dr. Caldwell's Syrup

MR. THOS. DeLOACH.

Pepsin is the best laxative I have any knowledge of and the cleaning up guaranteed by its use relieves every organ."

A bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin should be on hand in every home for use when needed. A trial bottle, free of charge, can be obtained by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 454 Washington St., Monticello, Ill.

Logan Raney and Thomas Bright went over Monday to Crab Orchard to drive back a bunch of cattle which they had there on pasture.

C. C. Gover, north of town, sold to T. W. Jones eight head of fat hogs that averaged 225 pounds at $8.75 a hundred.

J. W. Rochester, sold to T. W. Jones, 26 head of hogs which averaged 180 pounds at $8.50 a hundred. Mrs. J. B. Owsley also sold to Mr. Jones 26 head which averaged 182 pounds at the same figure.

J. H. Thompson, of the Preachersville section, bought a couple of nice short yearlings from John Horton, at $30 a head. To John Rigby, also of the East End, Mr. Thompson sold a bunch of 40 hogs which will be delivered Saturday and are expected to average from 140 to 150 pounds at $8.50 a hundred.

Eight strawberries raised by Hill Jennings at Shelby City were weighed and totalled 3 1-2 ounces.

At the Elmendorf Jersey dispersal sale last week, during the three days 437 head of imported Jerseys were sold at an average of $169. Thursday 138 animals averaged $124. Total receipts of the sale were $73,790.

William Bonta and Jake Brown, of Mercer have purchased a number of mule colts in that section at fancy prices. From John Woods they bought one at $110, one from George Shewmaker at $108, one from S. T. Teater at $105, and colts at $100 each from six other parties.

C. R. Harmon, of Marion county, purchased last week at Knoxville, Tenn., an Aberdeen Angus heifer for $310. He sold to Tom Brown, of New Hope at 650-pound 7-months-old bull of same breed for $100 and sold to J. A. Boulware, of Springfield a 1,000-pound bull for $200 and two heifers for $225.

L. P. Nunnelle, north of town, sold 17 hogs to Victor Lear of Lancaster at $8.50 a hundred. Mr. Nunnelle had the porkers in fine shape, as they crossed the scales at 220 pounds average. Mr. Nunnelle has 56 acres in corn this season, which is doing fine after the good rains.

Radiant, a chestnut gelding by C. T. Bohon & Son, of Lebanon's stallion, Red Rex, won all the open classes in the three-gaited rings at Durlands in New York, defeating Gossip. He was barred from the championship on account of having long tail, but won the championship class at Brooklyn, again defeating Gossip, the winner of the championship at New York.

J. F. Woolery, of Walcott, Ky., has a White Orpington hen that raised a brood of chickens this spring, and as soon as the chickens left her, celebrated by laying two eggs a day for four consecutive days. She settled down to business then and has laid one egg each day since. Mr. Woolery says he does not know what to attribute this heavy laying to, whether feed or sold or Bracken county stone or good attention. Mr. Woolery should bring her to the fair.—Falmouth Pendletonian.

T. W. Jones has made the following purchases during the past week: 61 hogs from R. T. Bruce at 8 cents; 26 hogs from Welch Rochester averaging 190 pounds at 8 1-2 cents; 26 hogs from Mrs. J. B. Owsley at 8 1-2 cents; four cows from Granville Lutes weighing 840 pounds at 5 1-4 cents; 6 cows from Fields & Horton at $40 a head; 33 hogs from G. E. Lutes at $8.35; 8 hogs from C. C. Gover, averaging 225 pounds at 8 1-2 cents; 23 hogs from Forest Reid, at 8 1-4 to 8 1-2 cents; 12 hogs from Jim Young, averaging 130 pounds at 8 1-2 cents a pound.

The London Echo said last week that last January T. G. Moren and J. T. Stacy bought eight registered Poland China gilts, at the price of $25 each and in co-operation with the State Department of Agriculture these eight gilts were distributed among the same number of boys of the County Corn Club, with the understanding that four gilts would be returned from the first litter or each. Last Monday sixteen gilts were returned, and registered and distributed among sixteen of the Corn Club boys with the understanding that they would be fed and cared for according to Government Regulations and from the first litter of each of these two gilts would be returned for further distribution, etc. These pigs were weighed and the boy whose pig makes the best gain at the least cost between date of delivery and County Fair, will be awarded a trip to the State Fair with all expenses paid.

The farmers of Garrard have done some hustling within the past few days, Norman Grow taking the lead in having set 9 acres in tobacco on Tuesday, his allotment to the Burley product to be 20 acres. While a number of Garrard planters will be somewhat belated in tobacco setting, still a goodly quota of them have been busy with this work, and have accomplished as much as usual for the May period. It has been stated that the 1916 acreage of tobacco will hardly be up to the average, the farmers preferring to grow a few acres of tobacco, but give it scientific and intensive cultivation. Hemp will doubtless take the lead as a money-making crop this season, as both local and city buyers have been engaging all the hemp seed Garrard growers will have for sale this coming fall at $3.50 per bushel.

The Department of Agricultural Economics of the Experiment Station, at Lexington, has a letter from W. T. Roark, proprietor of the Woolworth Farm, Franklin, Simpson county, Ky., announcing that the wool pooled by sheep men of Simpson county had just been sold at 39 cents straight. This is six cents above the average for Kentucky according to government figures. Several weeks ago Professor Bohannon received a letter from Mr. Roark asking for information on organizing. Upon receipt of a reply, he got to work, formed an association and pooled the crop. The wool was sold under sealed bids. Because of the limited time embraced, the move will serve as an unusual illustration of the efficiency of cooperation.

DIDN'T GET JESSAMINE NEWS.
E. C. Walton returned from Nicholasville last night, where he went to take charge of the Jessamine News, which he bargained for some two weeks ago. The title was not clear and he did not get possession of the paper. It is probable that the deal will go through later, but if it does not, Mr. Walton will start a new paper there before the end of June.

MERCER BOYS IN MEXICO.
Corporal Davis Marksbury, who was killed by Villa bandits Friday, was the son of Thomas Marksbury, a farmer of Mercer county. He was 27 years old, and this was his second enlistment. He received his military training chiefly at Columbus Barracks, Columbus, O., and from there went to Fort Leavenworth, Kan., in January, 1912. He was one of a family of six children, three boys and three girls. His father and mother are both living. Corporal Marksbury was the only one of the sons in the military service. George O. Hulet, who was wounded in the same battle, but who killed two bandits, is the son of Isaac Hulet, a farmer living near Braxton, in Mercer county. This is his first enlistment, and he also was at Columbus Barracks during young Marksbury's last training there.

Duffy. He sued Barksdale Hamlett with his bondsmen, Rufus H. Vansant and D. W. Gardner, together with the widow and executor of the late John C. Mayo, another bondsman, for $64,711; J. G.
